

CATHY LIPSCOMB FOLLOWS IN HER IN HER GRANDMOTHER'S FOOTSTEPS AND COLLECTS SPOONS

Cathy Lipscomb, 8, of New Orleans, Louisiana, looks with pleasure on her story birth spoon. In the center picture Cathy is helping to polish her grandmother's spoons. Cathy seriously contemplates the treasures in her own spoon rack.

Mrs. Catherine Lipscomb of New Orleans, Louisiana has sent us pictures of her granddaughter, and namesake. Cathy is eight years old and now has about forty spoons of her own. Someday she will inherit the eight hundred spoons in her grandmother's collection.

Cathy likes the first spoon she ever received best. She enjoys having her grandmother tell her she was almost 'born with a silver soon in her mouth' because she received her first one on her natal day. It is a beautiful stork spoon that is engraved with her name and other birth data. She is quite enthusiastic about her own treasures and she likes to help her grandmother polish the larger collection. She often tells her four-year old brother, "See! These spoons will all belong to me some day!"
