

DAVID FISH COLLECTS KNIVES

David Fish of Alderwood Manor, Washington, is a brother to Donald, who was pictured in the Silver Collectibles column in January 1970, as a collector of Medallion-head silver.

While his brother's interests run to the historical with emphasis on Greek and Roman Chronicles and English tales of Knights in Armour, David's attention is given to nature and the out-of-doors.

He hopes someday to become a Forest Ranger and work in the National Parks. Although only 10 years old he is already a fishermen of note in his community, having pulled in some fair sized catches. His other interest is gardening and on his family's large acreage he is continually clearing a new portion to plant something new. He pulls weeds for fun!

David is now collecting knives. He has a number of good silver pocket knives, a couple from Sheffield and Birmingham, England, a souvenir or two and several servicable ones which he uses in pursuing his agricultural and sporting hobbies.
