— Des Moines Register, Jan. 1965

MIRIAM DUNGAN, aged eight, shows interest in her mother's collectibles.

Five years ago when her mother's spoon collection was featured in the Home and Family Section of the Des Moines Sunday Register, Miriam's picture appeared admiring an old pressed glass holder which displayed a few spoons. The holder belonged to her maternal great-great grandmother, Martha Caldwell

Today at 14, Miriam enjoys playing the piano and is also interested in antiques.

Houston of Missouri and is dated 1884. It is the Jumbo pattern which commemorates a huge and famous circus elephant which was imported from London.

This month Miriam will be 14. She is very interested in her mother's collection of spoons, although she does not have a collection of her own. She is quite intrigued with antiques and has acquired a few. She loves to go to antique shows, and "antiquing" to shops, auctions, etc. Like most girls her age, she is busy with school (she is in Junior High School). She sews, plays the piano, sings in Girls' Glee Club, and takes dancing lessons. She is especially interested in rock collecting, an interest she has shared with her grandmother. She is a Junior member of the Audibon Society. All this plus church activities keeps her busy.
